Dear Mrs Groves The firm where I bought The head stone Told me they had placed it according To the rules + regulations of the cenetary. If you will look at the plot. you will see it would spoil The looks of the lot to have it mr Howy nash was kind enough To sell me burial space on his lot so that I could be buried next to my husband. My husband paid for half the Mac Donald lot + I am also entitled by inheritance The Cheesmans have buried all over the lot of now after 50 years

Dear Mrs Geores I don't see why you want the names of the under taker and the monument firm They are in no may to blame. If Mrs Mc Mahon and family have gotten in this position out of apite let her get out herself. I wrote to her and got a long letter surring dome the came tary and praising St Peters and St Pauls. The said they knew I wanted to be buried by my people that was why they buried as they did . I am the one with a grievance and not Mrs Mc Mahon. I Think it is shameful to som and in "the interest of peace bought burial space for myself on The Nach lot.

Hello,

I am not familiar with the Yates name, but I have a book, titled, "Westmoreland-200 Years", 1976. I glanced thru and came across a picture of a William Yates, group photo, showing a stone crushing machine on Eureka Rd., Westmoreland. There is also another mention of a Parton and Elizabeth Yates that operated a grocery store 1938-1944 on Main St. I could scan the book to see if there is any other info on that family name (with Bielby), as there is no index. Let me know if you would like me to check further.

I. FAMILY PAPERS

patricia yates andle

Patricia Ruth was born at 2:30 in the morning of February 14th, 1933. If I had been a boy, I would have been named Victor.

My first memories are of going to the Ebenezer Library on Union Road to the Children's story hour with Shirley and sitting on a little chair. The house, where we lived at that time, on Union Road just north of Seneca Street, has been replaced by a Burger King. Daddy used to dynamite the ice jams in Casenovia Creek when we lived in Ebenezer.

We kept our toys in dynamite boxes for years.

Next I remember living on a farm on Reserve Road. Margery and Genevieve were still living at home so it was around 1936. We had a cat named Mama Kitty, which my mother was fond of which is surprising to me as I always thought she disliked cats. The cat had a bent tail from being shut in the cellar door. The cat had kittens that I played with. I pushed them around in a doll buggy, fed them with a doll bottle and dressed them in my baby doll's clothes. There was a garage/barn where the boys fooled around

The Farm (1937?)

We next lived on a farm at 1246 East Quaker Road in Orchard. The house is still there, although some of the barns are gone. It is set very far back from the road with a long driveway and the pasture ran all the way back to Casenovia Creek where there were lots of wild Bluebells. The farm was rented from Mr. Curtis of the Curtis Hotel which was on the circle in East Aurora. Mr. Curtis gave me a pair of Bantam chickens. We had a team of horses. The gentle one, named Joe, I sat on without a saddle while one of the boys led him back from the pasture. His back bone protruded from his back and was very uncomfortable. I was watching one time when the team ran away with Donald standing on the empty hay wagon. Once, I rode in the car with Mom to East Aurora to have a horse shod. One of the boys held the lead out the window and we drove very slowly. We also had some cows, if I remember right, at least I remember my brothers trying to ride on a big calf. There was a big pen of rabbits in one of the barns. Evidently the animals, etc. belonged to Mr. Curtis and the boys did most of the work on the farm.

Once when Warren had sharpened an ax, he was going to test it on the fence. I was behind him and he hit me in the eye with the ax head. I got a big black eye and he got the devil for it. I can remember lying in my parents' downstairs bedroom getting a lot of attention and sympathy.

We had pointer dog named Freckles because he was white with little spots. He got caught in a bear trap that someone put in the woods nearby and was gone over a week. He finally came home starving and without any toes on one foot.

We also had a hired man who came into the back hall to eat his meals. He wouldn't come into the kitchen although he was asked to do so. He always ate with only his knife. We would peek around the door to watch him when Mom served peas.

Daddy had pneumonia while we lived here and was sick a long time. Mom would put a mustard plaster on his chest.

I started school at age 4 from the farm on the Orchard Park school bus. My first report card said "Patricia doesn't cry so much anymore".

Mama

The boys called Mama, the General. She was a great organizer. I didn't realize it when I was young, but she worked very hard all the time. Even sitting down to rest in the evening, she was darning, mending and knitting. She made her own bread which meant cranking the big dough mixer which took a great deal of strength. She washed on Monday with a wringer washer, wringing from the washer to the first laundry tub for one rinse and then to another for the second rinse and then into a big basket. Shirts and dresses etc. had to be starched which was made on a two-burner gas stove in the basement. Then it all had to be carried outdoors or to the attic to dry. There she pinned them on the lines and took them down and carried the big basket back into the house or down two flights of stairs. On Tuesday, she ironed all day. Nothing was permanent press. Before ironing she had to sprinkle them and roll them up dampen them evenly. Mama was a good cook. Her fricassee chicken, pea soup made with a ham bone and her lemon pie made from scratch were my favorites. Her piecrust was light as a feather. She always had a garden that she took care of herself except for the initial digging. There were always berries and vegetables and a row of Sweet Peas on a string trellis that she would put up between two tall stakes.

She belonged to the Presbyterian Church group called the Stitchery. She also belonged to the Home Bureau and to a garden club. She took special classes to become the teacher of many of the skills that she passed on to other Home Bureau members. She taught furniture refinishing and chair caning. Later she would get one of the boys to cane a chair for her for the payment of a whole pie of their choice all to themselves. She loved antiques and acquired a number of them at ridiculously low prices and refinished them. The big cherry dresser that I have was purchased for a couple of dollars and had umpteen coats of paint on it.

She made a lot quilts, at least one new one every year for the fair. She entered all kinds of needlework in the Hamburg fair when the women's exhibit was in the little octagonal building. She always won a lot of firsts for her fancy knitted mittens and for her quilts. She was particularly pleased with a tricolor ribbon for one of her quilts. She also entered flowers from her garden.

While we were living on West Quaker Street (about 1938), she had no dresser and was piling her clothes on a card table in her bedroom. She went out and bought an entire bedroom set, the cheapest (and ugliest) she could find, and felt extremely extravagant and guilty about as Daddy's earnings really had to stretch with six kids at home. She used it the rest of her life although she had plenty of opportunity to replace it. On it was the old cedar candy box that I keep my coins in and a complete pink celluloid dresser set consisting of mirror, nail buffer, comb, brush, shoe button, hair receptacle, powder box - the whole works. She also always had Lily-of-the-Valley perfume that someone was always giving her for Christmas. She subscribed to a religious publication called "The Upper Room" which contained prayers etc. A recent copy was always on the stand by her bed.

Mom drove all of us to the Adirondacks when I was quite young (about 1939 or 40. I remember the knob of the gearshift falling off and rolling under the seat. One of the boys(Don?) had to shift for her. The car broke down near Rochester. We stopped at a garage for repairs and they had a live owl that would turn its head all the way around to look at us. We were very impressed by it. I vividly remember sitting in front and my brothers teasing me by pointing out low hills and calling them mountains long before we got to the mountains.

Grandparents

We frequently drove to Utica and Richfield Springs to visit both sets of grandparents. (This must be from 1936 to 1941.) Grandpa Yates used to take me for a walk and buy me an ice cream cone. I remember he had hammertoes from wearing shoes too small as a child. They lived in several different rented flats that were kept "untouchable" The plate rack that my Dad made was always hung in the pantry.

Grandpa Johnson would let me go down to the pasture with him to get the cows. He had an open air saw mill run by a gasoline engine at the bottom of the pasture. He had a very gentle young brown bull on a chain and stake near the house. The house had no electricity and the some rooms were unfinished, although it was an old house at that time. There was a parlor with a settee and chairs covered in black horsehair fabric. They were terrible to sit on in a little girl's short dress. He had prayers and a Bible reading every morning in that room. There was an upright piano that Grandma Rose played and we all sang a hymn. I remember, on a table in the middle of the room, there was a beautiful big beautiful oil lamp with orange flowers on it. All of the oil paintings done by Mother's mother, Florence Genevieve, were on the walls and there were many, many old books. The house was set back from the road and the barn was close to the road on the other side. The yard wasn't mowed. It had long grass and shady trees, very pleasant. Grandpa Johnson's truck was something he built out of an old car. I rode with him to take the milk cans to the dairy; then we took a long ride around a big lake. Grandma Rose and Mama were worried and cross with him for not telling them where he was going. He was a lot of fun to be with.

Kenneth hitchhiked to Grandpa Johnson's farm to work summers. One time the boys drove there to wallpaper several rooms in the house. Mom bought the wallpaper in Buffalo. They forgot to take the wallpaper with them and had a great time anyway...

Pre War Orchard Park

First we rented the house at 28 North Davis Street (about 1938). I had Scarlet Fever there and the house was quarantined with a signed nailed to the door. I had to stay for two or three weeks in a darkened room. The boys went somewhere else to live so that they could continue in high school. We had a Hoosier cabinet in the pantry with a window opposite. Our neighbor, Mrs. Waltz said, at any time of the day or night, there was a boy standing in front of it, fixing bread and jelly.

We moved again to 6430 or 6432 West Quaker Street, next door to the lawyer, Melvin Bong, and across from the Roth family who became close family friends. Jane Bong was called "Door-Banger-Bong" by my brothers for obvious reasons. We used to play with paper dolls after bedtime from our respective upstairs bedroom windows, yelling across the lawn between the houses. It must have been a big secret. Paper dolls were a big thing in those days. I loved to cut them out. They were very cheap and you could get a lot of playtime from a few cents. I had dozens and dozens; I kept each set in a big cardboard envelope that the wax paper that was used to wrap sandwiches.

We lived in this house for a number of years. Donald (trombone) and Warren (trumpet) were in the Orchard Park High School Band. At that time the band played at Firemen's parades in all the neighboring towns. We went to one almost every weekend all summer. Warren played the trumpet very well and played solos (Ciribiri Bin) in the High School Auditorium-Gymnasium. (The seats rolled under the stage when it was a gym.) Don and Warren and a few friends also had their own little band that practiced in our dining room with the sliding doors to the hall shut.

The attic stairway went out of the upstairs bathroom, which was awkward, as we all played up there. In the attic were Don's Merry-go-round, Warren's Ferris wheel, Larry's garage and Ken's bughouse and elephant, among other things that Daddy had made them when they were younger. Shirley had child-sized table and chair set, a little kitchen cabinet and the highchair that I still have. Daddy made me the little cradle, which was always painted pink. I had a Betsy-Wetsy Doll with beautiful little baby clothes that Mama made for it.

The boys skated and played hockey on Freeman's Pond in the winter. Once Warren got hit with a puck and came home with a huge swollen lip. They also played darts in the dining room when Mom wasn't around, and Warren accidentally hit me in the leg with a dart.

We kept rabbits in the backyard in a coop. There also was an unused chicken coop that the boys had for there junk, mostly Larry's junk and a wind-up Victola. The boys did all kinds of yard work all over the village.

Donald had a yellow roadster with a rumble seat. Shirley and I rode in the rumble seat all the way to Zoar Valley where the Roth Family and all of us camped for the weekend (about 1940.) The boys went swimming in the nude. Daddy disguised himself with Mom dress and scarf; he went down to the creek and stole their clothes. He put them within the circle of light from our campfire. Warren had to come and get them covered by one little towel.

The school held all grades and we were all in the same building. OP population was about 1300 at that time. Even in kindergarten I would hear immediately what the boys were up to, like Larry dropping his lunch tray down the stairwell onto the principal's head or putting his fist through the wall.

In nice weather in the evenings, all the children of all ages in the neighborhood would play games together. We played It, Pies, Red Rover, Simon Says and other games like that. "Pies" was usually played on our front steps as we had enough steps for everyone to fit.

One summer, we had a tornado (1938-39). I was outdoors when it started to blow hard and ran indoors frightened. Dad said, "Come to the window. See, its just a little wind." At that moment the huge maple tree in the front yard blew down across Quaker Road, a whole row of big pines blew down onto Yox's Funeral Home Sign across the street, and the window shade and canary cage blew out of our dining room window. The volunteer firemen came a cut it up the tree and cleared the street.

We moved to another house on Quaker street but only stayed about a week for some reason. The next house was #26 South Davis Street, which at first we rented and then later on Dad bought it. He also bought a narrow strip of land from our Greek neighbor, Mr. Callis (the father of Mary Callis, Roger Sutter's first wife and owner of the Callas' restuarants). During the war he had Greek refugees working in his vegetable garden between our houses.

I always slept in a little back upstairs bedroom where the attic stairs were. My bed was under the back window where I had a clear view of the steam trains passing not too far behind the house. I can also remember seeing brilliant Northern Lights from this window. Hobos used to come to the back door and Mom would give them a plate of leftovers. I had a swing hanging from a beam attached to the top of the garage gable and could swing very high. Dad built a flagstone terrace and a very fancy bird apartment house that held a lot of house sparrows.

The War Years

Right after Pearl Harbor, Warren enlisted in the Air Force; Don got drafted into the Army and went to Camp Shelby, Mississippi. Larry joined the Air Force at the Hamburg Fair, after promising Mom he would stay in the Ground Corp. so she would sign for him. He didn't keep that promise and his letters came with initials of Bombardier School. No one would tell her what they stood for. Ken worked nights at the Curtis Plant, cleaning loose rivets and debris out of the planes they were building there. Families were allowed to tour this once. I vaguely remember seeing lines on planes in the building.

Donald came home on leave for Christmas once. My memory isn't clear as to whether this was before he went overseas or when he came back afterwords, We weren't going to have a tree because of the boys being gone. When we heard he would get home, Dad and I went to West Seneca and bought the last crooked tree available. He took branches off the bottom and drilled holes to put them in the bare places. We still had a lot of the very old ornaments in those days and it looked good. We went down to the big train terminal on Christmas Eve to meet him. It was absolutely packed with soldiers and sailors. Train after train came. We met every one of them from the South until we found him very late that night. Helen and her Mother would come out from Buffalo frequently to visit us. Don was gone for years.

Uncle Chester's son, Stanley was in the Navy and in Chicago for awhile. He would stop on his way to and from Tupper Lake. Once Warren was there as well, and they argued for hours about the merits of their respective armed branches. This was before they all went overseas. One night after I had gone to bed in my own bed, someone, Larry I think arrived unexpectedly on leave, then another, maybe Warren or Stanley. I had to give up my bed and move twice. I ended up on a cot in the attic. There were so many at the dining room table that Daddy had to go out the back door and come in the front to get to the living room.

All during these years of rationing, Mom had an extensive Victory garden covering a large part of the back yard where she grew tomatoes, onions, carrots, lettuce, peas, beans and other vegetables. She grew thornless raspberries, strawberries and currants for making jam and jelly. She bought cucumbers for making pickles; and she bought extra tomatoes for canning. We had old apple trees in the yard and every apple got picked up to make applesauce. Shirley and I helped picking and preparing the fruits and vegetables for canning. Daddy made the old cistern in the cellar into a fruit cellar with bins for potatoes and apples and shelves for all the canned goods. Sugar was rationed and she had a hard time getting enough for all the jam. We had to save our coupons for canning season. Butter and other things were rationed. If someone turned into the butcher a can of rendered fat from bacon or ham or something like that, they could get extra coupons.

Gas was rationed too, of course, but Daddy had a "C" or "D" sticker on his car because his work was considered vital. I think he was working on an expansion at Bethlehem then. Since he carpooled, we had enough gas for what little driving we did during the war. "A" was the minimum sticker for just pleasure use. People had to use the bus to get to Buffalo.

Kenneth didn't have a car, he walked to the OP 4 corners and rode with others. He worked the night shift. One night on his way to his ride, he thought he was kicking a paper bag out of his way, but it was a skunk. He came back and buried his clothes in the garden. He met his future wife, Pat Warning, in the car pool. He had a hard time falling to sleep in the morning daylight so he would lie on the floor in his upstairs bedroom and sing songs from an old songbook through the floor register. It sounded weird downstairs. Once when Mom was sawing up one of the old apple trees, he carried all the wood down cellar so that the neighbors wouldn't see her cutting it while he was home asleep. We had a coal or wood burning furnace as did everyone at that time. We had a dog named Vicky, short for Victory. It was very much Ken's dog.

I had the use of Donald's big green bicycle but my feet couldn't reach the ground while I was sitting on the seat. To get off I had to fall off.! Mom got Larry's check for him and depositing it in an account for him while he was in prison camp. He wrote to take money and buy me a new girl's bicycle. The only thing made at that time was a narrow wheeled flimsy thing, but I loved it. It was blue and a joy to ride after Don's big iron thing. It was the only bike I ever had.

I belonged to the Girl Scouts for a couple of years. The troop, #130, entered a Girl Scout music contest in March of 1945 in Kleinhans Music Hall. We drew numbers for the order of performing and we got first. It seemed unlikely that we could win from that position, but we were so much better than all the rest, that after listening to 89 other troops we got first place. We sang "Charley is My Darling" and Finlandia by Sibelius.

We got milk from a farm where Larned Lane now stands. I had to walk there every evening with an aluminum milk pail to get it filled. There were a lot of fields around to play in. I could walk to Green Lake, across the tracks, through the basket factory and through the woods. The basket factory used a team of horses to haul their lumber around the sheds. We had a coal furnace and spread the ashes on the driveway to keep the mud down. I did a lot of sidewalk roller skating all over the village. We had mail delivery at the house, but on Sunday the post office was open and I had to walk there, rain, shine or snow to see if their were any letters from the boys for Mom. Lots of times there was nothing, but once, I think it was Mother's Day, she got a big boxed padded heart shaped card from one of them. She was thrilled. It is odd to remember how emotional she was then, because later in her life, she never seemed to be excited or perturbed by anything.

The day the telegram came saying Larry was missing-in-action. I was home alone with Mom. She got a phone call and collapsed in hysterics. I ran next door and got her friend Mrs. Seifurt and she called the doctor who gave her a sedative. Later they were ordered never to read those telegrams over the phone, they had to be delivered in person. Mrs. Seifurt told me to sit on the front steps and wait for Daddy and tell him about Larry. We had a service flag in our front window with three blue stars and after that we had one with two blue stars and a silver one. I was in school when we heard six weeks later that he was a prisoner of war. The principal, Dr. Johnson, called me out of class to tell me and sent me home. He was going up and down the halls shouting "Larry's been found!" He was very fond of him.

When Larry was in England after being liberated from Romania, Mom wrote to congressmen and even the president to get him home for Christmas. She always said the letter to the president did it. He finally did come home in time for Christmas, we met him at the little depot in East Aurora. It was a very exciting day.

After the War

Larry was very nervous after he came home. The least little bang would upset him and he would jump. He went out walking a lot. He was at Valley Forge Army Hospital for a long time and came home frequently on leave. We always met him at East Aurora Depot. Once he slept through East Aurora stop and we had to go in to Buffalo for him. Another time he came home with a terrible case of poison ivy that he got while looking for four-leaf clovers on the Valley Forge Golf Course. He was covered with purple medicine. He wore khaki shorts with all his medals pinned along the bottom edges. Larry learned ceramics while there and brought the hobby home to Delly and Mom. One of the things they made were delicate ceramic flowers to put on pins or boxes. This was in the basement on Davis St. Mom started using molds for dishes and figurines with ceramic lace dresses. Mom made a lot of Pennsylvania Dutch birth and wedding plates out of red clay with the design scratched into the glaze before it was fired. Mom was still doing ceramics on Green Meadow Drive. Eventually Gen got into it for awhile as well. She made beautiful Christmas bells among other things.

When Warren got home after the war, he lived with us until he found an apartment in the upstairs of the house we had lived in on North Davis when I had Scarlet Fever. He had the apartment while Rena came. Larry got married while he was in Valley Forge hospital and Delly lived with us too for quite awhile. Eventually an apartment was made in our upstairs for Larry and Delly. Helen, her brother Elmer and her mother (and an obnoxious Boston terrier) came out from Buffalo frequently during the wars years to visit us.

Both Donald and Warren joined the Carpenter's Union. As veteran's they could do so without an initiation fee or apprenticeship. Larry first worked at a warehouse, but the work was too heavy for him and he went to work in Arthur's Hardware in OP.

Later, both Don and Warren were partners with Dad at various times in building houses, but at first Dad remodeled kitchens in Orchard Park. He and Don bought the property along the north side of Green Meadow Drive and sold lots and built at least four houses there, the first three (our first, our second and Larry's) and Don's was the last house at the end.

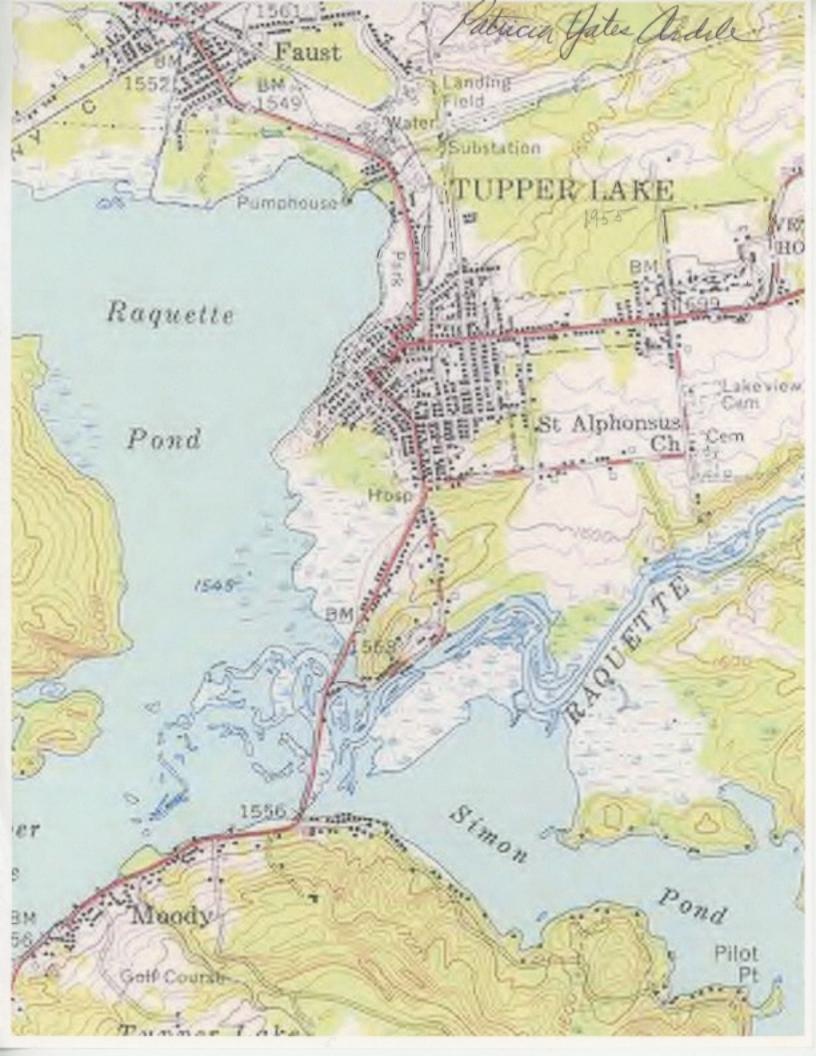

I used to take the train to the Adirondacks almost every summer, changing trains in Utica and being met in Tupper Lake Junction or at Lake Clear. Emily and I did a lot of rowing on the river and pond in an old very heavy life-saving boat. We would go through the woods to the other side of the hill the Johnson house was on to "Slippery Rock" where you could see Tupper Lake (the lake not the town). We were great fiends in our early teens. I would also stay with Aunt Velma. She kept boarders in the summer and Louise and I slept in the tiny cabin across from the house. We walked all over the woods and fields, picking blueberries and "helping" (probably getting in the way) Charlie and Uncle Marty with the haying. They kept pigs then too.

Warren Ystes Transcript of a T0301025. TXT June 1995 cossette type by Warren Galor

This is an account of my father's work experiences as told by Warren Yates. My father's name was Laurence Yates and he was born in Utica, New York, and as far as I remember being told about his work, he started when he was fourteen years of age as an apprentice carpenter in Utica, New York, and by the time he was eighteen, he was a master carpenter and worked around the city of Utica for contractors, I don't remember who, building mainly apartment buildings and probably other work as well that I don't know anything about.

During World War I, my mother and Dad moved to Buffalo, and he worked at Glen Curtis Boat Division building pontoons for sea planes, of all things, and also I think they, at this Glen Curtis place, they built motor launches. He worked there until this flu epedemic hit and they decided to move back to Tupper Lake where it would be more out of the way and safer.

I remember him telling me, and this would be of course after the war was over, going into partnership with a Vincent Sciavi, and whether it was a full partnership or they bid together on jobs, my dad as carpenter, doing the carpenter work on the jobs and Mr. Sciavi doing the brick laying and concrete work. I kind of think that that's what the set up was. Well, anyway they built the American Legion camp on the south side of Tupper Lake, you can see it, it's a large stone building that you can see from across the lake and also some of the other buildings that were there, supply buildings and such because it was kind of a community of it's own at that time. Also, I know they built the connecting corridors at the veterans hospital up on the hill there heading towards Saranac Lake and that was quite a big job and also I remember him talking about working at the Altmont dairy and also there was a service garage and dealership in the Village of Tupper Lake that they built. They probably did a lot of other work too that he never told us about because they worked at a lot of the camps around there doing one thing or another. I can remember my Dad and Uncle Chet and Uncle Hugh Johnson getting together and reminiscing about all these foolish and crazy things they used to do. So that's just a side bit.

These antics didn't take place during work. They usually stayed at the jobs because they were out in the wilds and it was too much of a job to come home each night. My Dad went broke, I don't know all the details about this of course, but sometime in 1927 or 1928, and Vincent Sciavi was able to hang on. That's one of the reasons why I think this wasn't a true fifty-fifty partnership. And we moved to Buffalo and I guess he either sold or lost our big house on Lake Street in Tupper Lake. I have fond memories of that, not an awful lot of memories, but quite a few. I remember these big rams coming into our yard in wintertime and scaring the heck out of us and I remember being stung by a flock of bees that were under our front porch and a few other things, of course I was six years old when we left. I remember my brother Don and I on an Easter morning going down to the lake and riding our tricycles out on the lake, and one of us fell through, I think it was Don, and we didn't go to church that day, and we were kind of scolded about that. I also remember being in a crib a lot then because I was sick with pneumonia and scarlet fever and missed out on my first year of school that way.

When we got to Buffalo, well we didn't really move to Buffalo, we moved to Ebenezer, and when we got there we moved into a house on Main Street in Ebenezer. I don't think we lived there very long it must have been about six months to a year at the most and then we moved to a house in Buffalo on Gary Street and we lived there about another year and I don't really remember very much about going to school or anything there, I don't know why. Then we moved to Seneca Street, 4144 Seneca Street, and lived there for quite a long time. That's where my fondest memories are of my childhood. It was a large house and had a barn in the back. We always had a vegetable garden, chickens and rabbits and ducks and you name it. And we spaded the garden by hand every year and planted our vegetables. Also we were close to Cazenovia Creek where my brother Don and I had great fun playing every summer and, well, whenever we had a chance. Well I'm getting off the subject here.

When we came to Buffalo, my Dad already had a job, I think, because Vincent Sciavi had a bridge job in Buffalo for some reason, I don't know, but it was a bridge on Bailey Avenue over, well it was either Cazenovia or Buffalo Creek, I think it was Buffalo Creek, and it was a big job and probably lasted him two or three years. I also remember him working, oh, he had to join the union, and he belonged to the pile drivers union local 440, and so he did a lot of work around the water, I also can remember him telling us about working on a grain elevater on some kind of a slip form which was quite unique and a great experience for him and also I can remember him going to a job, Don and I with my Dad, they built a ramp, it's close to Lasalle Park, it was for seaplanes to land in the water and then taxi up onto the ground. They were going to have an airport there in Lasalle Park. That's down near where the marina is. Also, he worked on the Bird Island Tunnel which was a big job, probably lasting a long time, a couple or three years, I would think and they built a tunnel underneath the Black Rock canal connecting, this was for sewage, connecting Bird Island with the mainland. I also remember him working over in Niagara Falls, just outside of Niagara Falls, he was the superintendent on a job, building a sewage disposal plant. That's all I can recall of his work before World War II.

I went into the army in December of 1941 and I was in the service for four years and three and a half years of that overseas so I have no idea what he did during the war, I don't remember my mother writing anything about it, so that's a blank to me. After the war, I think he was out of the union and was in business for himself building homes. I know he built my sister Gen's house, Kidder;'s house,his own house up on Duerr Road and did the extension on the house that my sister Gen bought on Duerr Road and a lot of other jobs and I was in work for him for a short period of time on Carroll Street down next to Carroll's Garage, he built six houses there. So he was kind of a general contractor building houses for private people as long as I can remember up until the time he retired, of course then he went up to Tupper Lake and went to work with my Uncle Chet on the Adirondack Museum and of course we all know about all of that.

I thought it might be interesting to tell you the places that I remember where we lived and the approximate years. Of course we started out with Tupper Lake and we moved from there in 1928 to Main Street in Ebenezer and we lived there not too long, probably six months to a year at the most. Then we moved to Gary Street in South Buffalo and we lived there about another year, no longer than that. I can't remember much about it. Then we moved to Seneca Street in Ebenezer, the number of the house was 4144, and it's not far from Mill Road, between Union and Mill Road, and we lived there about six years. That was the longest I can remember living anywhere. Then we move to a house on Union Road between Seneca Street and Main Street. The parking lot of McDonald's takes up the area now. And we lived there for not very long, I'd say another year. And then we moved to Reserve Road at the intersection of Southwestern Blvd there is a little trianglular area there where the house was, the second house from the corner. It was a farm but it wasn't being farmed when we moved there. We just lived in the house. There was a barn behind the house that we didn't use very much. And we didn't live there very long either, as far as I can remember, it was all of a summer and part of the fall. Then we moved to the Curtis Farm out on Route 20A in East Aurora. You probably recall a place going between Orchard Park and East Aurora where they've been dumping fill in the front of it for years and they've finally leveled it off. Well that's the farm. It was thirty-one acres and we tried to do something with it. When we rented it we got a hired hand along with the deal and he got thirty dollars a month plus room and board. He wasn't very good at the job but we kept him on for a while and my brother Don and I did most of the work. Of course Larry and Ken did a lot too. They took care of the pigs and the chickens and we had to milk the cows. We usually had nine cows to milk at a time and one or the other of us took the odd one. We didn't sell the milk, we ran it through a separater and sold the cream to a creamery. We took it out to the road each morning. We lived there for a little over a year again, I can't really recall exactly. It wasn't too successful a venture, I don't think. My brother Don and I would rather have been working for the other farmers around there. He had a steady job with Clarence Oldenburg all summer long at good pay and I could work there whenever I wanted to too. So we weren't too enthusiastic about the farm. And another thing, every morning before we went to school we had to take a bath because we didn't want - you know how those cows could flick you with their tails and leave quite an odor about. Well anyway, that's that story.

Then we moved to Orchard Park to a house on West Quaker Street. I remember it as being Charlie Scholl's, house right close to Larned Lane, and we only lived there about two weeks. I can remember the main thing about it was moving that darn piano again, taking the legs off of it and putting them back on and hauling it into the house and out again. And then we moved from there to North Davis Street and we stayed there for just a short time too and eventually we moved to West Quaker Street across from Dr. Colk and the Ross' and next door to Melvin Bong who was the superintendant of the town. We lived there until after I graduated from high school and went into the service. And then I don't really remember when my Dad bought the house on South Davis Street. I think we already lived there when I went into the service. Yes I can recall it now, because I used to come home from work and bring two pints of ice cream home with me. One I would eat myself, and the other I would give to the rest of the family to divide up. Pat was probably already in bed because I was working real late. Well that's about all there is to tell about houses.

I've just realized that I didn't say the years which I think we moved into these different houses so I'll just make a quick list of it. Main Street, Ebenezer, about 1928; Gary Street, Buffalo 1929; Seneca Street, Ebenezer 1930; then we moved to Union Road, Ebenezer 1936; then we moved to Reserve Road, Orchard Park in 1937; and the Route 20A house in East Aurora in 1938; then we moved to North Davis Street in Orchard Park about 1939; and moved to West Quaker Street in Orchard Park in 1940 and stayed there until about the end of 1941.

I just thought I might reminisce a bit about things that were fun for me when I was a boy. I can remember most Sundays in the summertime, or a lot of them anyway, we would go to Chestnut Ridge Park for the day and we did it quite differently then they probably would do today. My Dad used to take my mother and a couple of the kids up there about six o'clock in the morning to stake out a good site so that we would have one of the best sites for the day and they would have breakfast up there and he would come back home and load up the rest of the stuff and pick up the rest of the kids and the Sunday paper of course, and we would get back up there about eight or so and we would stay there for the day. We had great times playing in the ravines, looking for salamanders and one thing or another and playing softball and greasing up the slides so that they would go lightning fast and just having great times. I also remember playing cards and Mahjong. We used to play a lot of Mahjong with my Dad. And we used to play pinochle and when we played three-handed pinochle it used to be quite a riot because my Dad always accused my brother Don and I of teaming up against him and we probably did, but at the time we denied it because, but I suppose you know, you don't want your Dad to win all the time. He's the big challenge, not my brother. So we had great fun and he used to, this is my father of course that I'm talking about, used to play baseball with use every evening in the summertime he usually just did the pitching. Not baseball, softball, and he would do the pitching and we would just take turns batting. You'd go out to the outfield and work your way in to home plate and then you'd be up to bat until you were out. And pitching horseshoes and going to the lake, over to Woodlawn Beach swimming and we did an awful lot, we never knew we were all that poor, I guess we weren't really.

I remember him, one Christmas in particular he, when we lived on Seneca Street, I mentioned about the barn in the back, well the second floor of the barn over the part where the barn doors were was a real nice flooring of clear white pine and my Dad started, unbeknownst to us of course, he started taking the boards up one at a time to make toys for us for Christmas. He re-sawed them all, there were planks about probably and inch and a quarter or an inch and a half thick, something like that, I don't really remember and eight to ten inches wide, and he re-sawed them all by standing the board on edge and sawing down through it so that he would have planks that would be about a quarter to three-eights of an inch thick. And then he planed all those down by hand and where we lived on Seneca Street it was quite a large house. I remember it had about four porches on it and anyway there was a room at the back off the dining room that he made into a shop and we weren't allowed in there and it was always locked and he made, after he cut these planks, he made toys for us, and for that Christmas, my brother Don got a carousel, it was about three feet in diameter, a beautiful thing, it was crank operated. It had a crank on it with a leather belt pulleys and even the horses went up and down on it. I wish it was still around but I know its not. It had two floors, the part that went around, and the part that stayed steady, and the bottom floor had a track around it that went all the way around, kind of a wavy track, and each horse stood on a post with a wheel at the bottom and as you turned it around, the wheel went up and down over these humps and made the horses look like they were going up and down. It was quite something. He made a ferris wheel for me and this was quite large too. It must have been at least three feet in diameter and it had about eight carriages that we used to put stuff in and that worked the same way with a crank and wooden pulleys and a leather belt and he made a, we called it the flying machine, for my brother Ken that was like a tower in the center with eight arms that stretched out and had what looked like little sleighs hanging on chains that would swing out as you cranked it. And that was really nice too. And for Larry, I remember him making a copy of the tower bridge in London, and of course we used that all the time because we had these sets of blocks that he made for us that we already had, about three dynamite boxes full of them. These blocks, the longest ones were about eight inches long, then six inches, then four inches, and two inches by two inches square and we could make all kinds of things with them. That was another thing he made for us. Then I think, I can't remember what he made for the girls. I think Shirley had a kitchen cabinet, I'm not positive and what he made for Gen and Margery I don't know, I think they were boxes, some kind of jewelry boxes or something, but I can't remember. The following year, he made for Don and I each a model boat, they were about two feet long and they looked like Chriscraft motor launches and also made for me a model of the, it must have been 1928 or 1929, he made me a model of, this must have been preceding the carousel and all that, because he made me the Spirit of St. Louis airplane. It had about a two foot wingspan, seems to me I remember having that first, so that was another year. I'm getting kind of mixed up now. He made a lot of stuff for us that was really appreciated.

When we lived in Ebenezer, almost every winter or spring, Cazenovia Creek would jam with ice, and the fields across the street from us would be full of huge, we called them icebergs, but big blocks of ice, that overflowed the banks. Usually the jams were at the bridges, either the Mill Road bridge or Union Road bridge, and sometimes at Cazenovia Street at that bridge or down at Stevenson Street, the next bridge down in South Buffalo. They used to dynamite these ice jams and I can remember going up to the Mill Road bridge and watching these guys throwing the dynamite over the bridge onto the ice and trying to break up these jams and they weren't very effective at all. The dynamite was landing on topof the ice and just blowing a little hole in the ice, it wasn't doing a bit of good. And my Dad was familiar, not an expert, but he knew dynamite, because when they worked up in the Adirondacks, almost every job you ever did meant drilling rocks and putting dynamite sticks in and blasting, any excavation at all amounted mainly to blasting because just under the surface was rock almost anywhere, that's why you could tell anywhere you walked up there, how hollow it sounded. So anyway, he was watching them, futilily trying to break up these jams, and he told them, of course he wasn't shy, he told the guys that were doing it that they weren't doing it right and that they should get the dynamite down under the ice so it would heave it up and break up these jams. So, I don't know, it was either the first or second year after he got involved in it, they gave him the job. I think he worked for the city. And he would, I don't know how long the fuses lasted, probably five or ten minutes, something like that, but he would take the dynamite sticks out on the ice, he would walk out on the ice himself because it was pretty substantial, he wasn't worried about anything giving way, and he dropped the dynamite sticks down amongst the bergs, or whatever you want to call them, and light the sticks and then very calmly walk to shore and wait a few minutes and BOOM! Then you'd have a real geyser and a real eruption. I guess it worked because he must have done that for probably three or four years.

I can remember him in on, I think its called Legion Drive, it runs between Cazenovia Street and Stevenson Bridge, I can remember watching him there dynamiting a big ice jam that had left ice all over Cazenovia Park, huge chunks of ice all over the park. And where South Gate Plaza and those subdivisions are along the Creek there now in those days that used to be, when the creek went over it was full of ice and the ice blocks were three to four feet thick and probably weighed a few ton and this would happen anyplace along the creek, anywhere from Leydecker Road on down, wherever a narrow spot or a tree fall snagged the ice and caused it to block. I thought it was very interesting and very exciting and he was very very good at it and did it for I'd say about three or four years.

I remember another occasion when we lived on Seneca Street, we were going to have a total eclipse, and in those days, and well I suppose even today it would be pretty exciting, and we were told how to watch it and all that so my Dad got big chunks of eising glass from somewhere that were almost black so that we could look through them. We were getting prepared for this for a week probably because he was very interested in this kind of stuff and getting prepared for it and getting the chairs out, well not a week in advance with the chairs, but getting all set so he could lay back view it to the ultimate. And it turned night and its the only time I can ever remember an eclipse that was that dark, it actually turned night and that was a great thrill. Another thing he did that I can remember, he got some umbrella stays. They used to have wagons in those days where the junk collecter used to come along, or the ice man or whatever and they had big umbrellas on the front for the driver to sit under on these hot summer days. He got a hold of one of those umbrellas and said that this would be really neat to make a bow out of, a bow and arrow, so he took this umbrella apart and he showed Don and I how to do it and he got some very fine wire, it looked like wire that would be wrapped around an electric motor or something and wired these stays together, the bow was probably six or seven feet altogether and the longest stays went all the way to the end and then he had gradually shorter stays so there would be more flexibility on the ends. He made us some arrows, and instead of just regular ordinary arrows, he put lead heads on them wrapped with the same type of wire so that the head was real heavy and we could shoot them, if you shot them straight up in the air, they would go out of sight. And he warned us against shooting them horizontally because they would go so far you would never know what you might hit. But my brother Don and I used to shoot them across, of couse we lived right on Seneca Street and across the street was nothing but fields all the way to the creek. So we used to shoot them out into the fields when nobody was around so we could get away with it. They were were really something, so powerful.

One summer after the garden had kind of died out, Don and I were going to make a wigwam in the back yard and my Dad says, "Well, I can show you how to make a real nice hut that'll be nicer than a wigwam." So he says, "Go down by the creek," there's all kinds of small trees down there, "and get some of those real supple trees," I don't remember what they were, probably willow or aspen or something. "about an inch in diameter at the bottom and about twelve feet long," he says, "and get about fifteen of those." So my brother Don and I went down by the Union Road bridge, a territory we knew every inch of the way, and we found exactly what he was talking about. And we cut about fifteen or twenty of these things and brought them back home and we made a ring of them and stuck them in the ground about six inches at the heavy ends and bent them over to the opposite ones and tied them together at the top. We made it about, well we were only boys so it might not be as tall as I thought it was, but it seemed like it was eight feet tall but we tied all these saplings together at the top and he told us to get some more because he wanted to weave some more around kind of bands around the sides so we got some more and did that and then we cut our corn which was, we had just finished eating it all, and woved the corn in between these saplings until we had the whole thing covered over. It looked like one of these African huts. It was real cool in there. It lasted all winter and the next spring, by then the corn husks were pretty dry and we tore it down and burned everything up so we could get going on our garden. But that was quite an experience and we used that technique, my brother Don I and Harold Ulrich, and a couple other kids in town, we used to go up into the woods on the south bank of Cazenovia Creek and play up there all the time and we'd make our own huts up there using the same technique, but cutting underbrush and weaving that instead of corn stalks, we'd use whatever was available and had great fun and were always encouraged to do those things. We weren't doing anybody any harm, just a few saplings that would be very easily re-grown and stuff like that.

We were married October 14, 1916 in the Methodist Church on Court St. in Utica with my sister Ruth and Larry's brother Hugh as witnesses. We went by train to Bloomingdale for a weeks honeymoon at Velma and Sewell's. Martin Emmons, who later was Velma's 2nd husband met us at the train in Saranac and went to Bloomingdale by horse.

Larry was working as a pattern maker at Hart and Crouse Foundry in Utica where his father worked. We rented an upper flat with in walking distance.

The work did not agree with him and by spring he was very sick. We moved to Tupper Lake and lived in my father's cottages. There were three of them then, first lower camp when Genevieve was born. I went to Utica and she was born in the hospital.

Larry was soon able to work and walked to the village and carried our groceries home in a pack basket.

War was on in Europe and Larry wasn't well enough to enlist and we came to Buffalo and he worked at the Curtis plant making wooden airplanes which were assembled in France. Chester was in the Navy and at the Curtis plant when we came. He assembled planes later in France.

Larry was one of the first to get the terrible flu that killed so many in 1918-9. In September Marjorie was due in December but so many people were dying of flu that it was safer to have a baby at home. She was born in the bungalow.

Then we moved into the upper camp, where Fazios live and Don was born, I went to Utica again to the hospital.

Larry had steady work, then at Tupper Lake and in 1921 we bought a house in the village, and lived there until 1928 when we moved to Buffalo. We lived one year in Ebenezer, one year in Buffalo, then back to Seneca Street in Ebenezer for several years.

Larry started contracting on his own at Tupper Lake in the middle 20's. He was a young man then and got a contract for the Veteran Mountain Camp across the lake in Big Tupper. There wasn't much of a road then so they went by boat Monday mornings. Pa hired a cook and boarded the men and all came back Saturday nights.

Did lots of building in Tupper Lake and got the job thru Veterans Administration to build the covered walks between buildings at Sunmount.

Later, he also built covered walks in Massachusetts at another Veterans Hospital but I think he had a partner, Vincent Schiavi on that one.

Then they got the contract for the Bailey Avenue bridge here in Buffalo and we moved here in Spring of 1928.

When that job was done, he and Vincent split up and Larry joined the carpenters union in Buffalo and worked on many jobs here until after the 2nd war.

We moved to Orchard Park in 1938, first on a farm on East Quaker, then into the village and one year on Davis St., several on West Quaker next to Bongs then back to South Davis which we bought. Then to Duer Road in 1947 which Pa built.

We moved to Sherff Road in October 1952, and to 7 Greenmeadow in August 1954. He went to Tupper Lake to work at Blue Mountain in May 1955. Laurence A. Yates Orchard Park, New York 1971

I was born June 17, 1895 in the town of Westmoreland in a house next door to an ironfoundry. It is still in operation. My grandmother and grandfather MacDonald lived a few houses down towards a creek, on a little farm.

Grandma had two boys named Cheesman, by a previous marriage. Uncle William was the only one I remember and he and Aunt Minnie had a daughter Clara, twins Frank and Francis, and another boy Albert, who all lived in Utica.

My father's brother William Yates and his wife Myrtle lived in Westmoreland. Uncle Will ran a small funeral parlor and furniture store on front of their house. They had five children, Howard, who was an architect in Syracuse (died 6 years ago), Laura, who now lives in a nursing home; Rachel, Rena, and Louise are now living somewhere around Utica. We moved to Utica when I was about 4 years old. I can still see my mother sitting on a brown couch (with my brother Hugh in her arms) on top of a hay wagon loaded with furniture. My father rented the team and wagon and we rode 15 miles to Utica. Next day he had to return to Westmoreland and come to Utica on the train.

There were 3 foot board sidewalks on both sides of the gravel streets, gaslights at street intersections, also we had city water and bathroom, but still had oil lamps and heated and cooked with coal wood.

We lived nearly across from school on Francis Street. Dad worked at Hart and Crouse Iron Foundry as a bench moulder. My Uncle Will was a boss in the same place.

Later we moved to Catherine Street near Dad's work. All I can remember about it was that it was cold and I had the mumps. Another thing I remember is a kid who lived in the flat above us kept picking on me and his pals egged me into a fight and I knocked two of his front teeth out. Of course this caused friction in the house, anyhow we moved again.

I think this time to West Street near the West Shore railroad line. I remember my grandmother came to visit us and took me on the trolley to the edge of Deerfield (now part of Utica), we had to walk across a bridge over the Mohawk River and the New York Central railway tracks to get to the horse-car. This was an open car drawn by a team of horses. (This happened to be the last day it ran.)

Dear Auntie,

I didn't know until the past week that you did not want the head stone put in the right place and I thought I was doing you a favor arguing and willing to pay for having it done, but as you don't care I certainly don't only any thing head stones or flowers on our graves has to to Blessed so I am having the priest come up next week and Bless the stone I don't know about blessing the grave

p. 2 with the head stone they usually bless the grave also where the head stone belongs but that is just one of those thing for doing things wrong I didn't think you wanted the stone blessed as you are in a different faith than me that is why I didn't have it done before but that is they our belief and I wouldn't want anything to happen to me and not have that done I really have waited to long now After we have flowers and

SAFETY CORD LOCK

Laurence A. Yates, Orchard Park, N. Y.

Application May 23, 1939, Serial No. 275,298

5 Claims. (Cl. 200-51)

This invention relates to improvements in electric connector units and is especially concerned with a novel connector unit including a novel key controlled mechanism for interrupting an elec-5 trical circuit within said unit.

It is an object of the present invention to provide a connector unit, preferably a plug, to be used In connection with an electrical outlet which includes means for interrupting the electrical cir-10 cuit through said plug in a manner such that unauthorized use of the device connected with the plug can be at least largely precluded.

Another object of the present invention is to provide an improved electrical plug including key is controlled means whereby connection of the device attached to said plug with the power source is permitted only to the user of an appropriate

It is a feature of the device according to the present invention that it provides a safety control whereby unauthorized use as by children or other persons of devices connected with the plug can be controlled. This is accomplished by interposing in the electrical circuit whereby the device is connected with the power source a key controlled switching unit which has combined therewith a plug suited for use with conventional types of electrical outlets.

A noteworthy advantage of the device according to the present invention is that it can be manufactured, in a large part at least, by simple mode of operations which, in view of the present state of the plastic molding industry, promotes economical mass production. Moreover, the device comprises comparatively few parts, all of which are characterized by simplicity of construction and the assembly of the parts of the device to form the finished product, can be made withan out the necessity of use of skilled labor.

Other objects, advantages and features of the novel combination switch and plug, according to the present invention, will be apparent to those skilled in this art during the course of the follow-45 ing description.

Regarded in certain of its broader aspects, the present invention comprises a hollow casing formed of electrically insulative material substantially T-shaped in configuration and having lo-50 cated within the circular arm thereof a rotating key controlled switch and in another of said arms a terminal board, the other arm including a plug unit suited for use in conjunction with conventional electrical outlets, the switch serving upon 55 occasion to connect or to disconnect an electrical circuit including the terminals of the terminal board and the terminals of the plug unit.

In order to facilitate a fuller and more complete understanding of the matter of the present invention a specific embodiment thereof is herein illustrated, it being clearly understood, however, that the embodiment herein illustrated and hereinafter described is provided solely by way of example and not non-limitative upon the scope of the present invention except as same is expressed 10 in the subjoined claims.

Referring then to the drawing:

Figure 1 is substantially a top plan view of the novel combination plug and switch according to the present invention with a plug unit facing upwardly;

Pig. 2 is a substantially side elevational view of the device according to the present invention looking toward the portion of the device wherein the lock is normally positioned, the lock being omitted to display interior structure;

Fig. 3 is substantially a vertical sectional view of the device taken along the axis thereof with certain of the parts shown in full view;

Fig. 4 is substantially a side elevational view of 25 the switch rotor; and

Pig. 5 is a top plan view of the switch rotor.

In the accompanying drawing, the combination plug and switch is generally designated by the numeral 10 and it will be noted that the device 30 comprises a casing 11 formed of electrically insulative material and presenting three hollow radiating arms 12, 13 and 14, arranged in a T-shaped configuration. Within the casing arm 12 is located a key controlled rotating lock 15 of con- 35 ventional type, the key (5a being shown in phantom in Fig. 3. It is preferred that the lock be mounted within the opening 12a of the arm 12 by attaching the lock to a plate 15b received in the circular recess 12b formed in the face of the arm, 40 the plate 15b being attached to the arm by means including screws 15c, passing through openings in the plate and engaging with threaded openings 12c formed in the arm substantially as shown. It will be noted that, although the lock 15 is sub- 45 stantially cylindrical, the opening 12a, wherein the lock is received, is essentially elliptical in cross sectional outline.

The rotating cylinder of the lock 15 is provided at the end thereof with a shaft 16 united to the 50 cylinder by the coupling 18a, the shaft extending axially through the casing and its end portion being received in the bearing 16b formed integral with the casing substantially as shown in Fig. 3. The shaft 16 in the preferred embodiment of the 55 instant invention is not circular in cross sectional outline, but instead one side is flattened for purposes which hereinafter will be more clearly apparent. It is to be noted that the shaft 16 carries thereon in a locality near the bearing 16b a collar 17 substantially fixedly attached to the shaft by means including a pin 11b essentially as shown in Fig. 3. The collar 17 is provided with a projecting arm 17c which extends into a segmental recess 17d formed in a portion of the casing 11 whereby rotative motion of the shaft 16 is restricted to substantially a quarter turn.

An essentially cylindrical block of electrically insulative composition 18, best illustrated in Figs. 15 3, 4 and 5, is provided with an axially extending opening 18' therein to receive the shaft 16 hereinabove described whereby the block may be carried upon the shaft in a manner such that relative rotation of the shaft and plug is precluded. 20 At opposite ends of the block 18 are mounted switch elements 19 comprising an annular center portion 19b disposed concentrically with respect to the axis of the cylinder block 18 and provided with diametrically positioned radiating wiper 25 arms 19a which extend from the block in spaced parallelism essentially as shown in Figs. 3 and 4. It is clearly to be noted that the switch elements 19 are retained in position with respect to each other and to the block 18 by means including the axially extending formations 18a in the end parts of the block together with the axially extending peripheral parts of the block 18 which surround the annular portions 19b of the switch elements essentially as shown in Figs. 4 and 5. The block 35 18 with the switch elements thereon is mounted on the shaft 16 between the washers 18b which are formed of electrically insulative material and which space the switch elements from the collar 18c formed integral with the shaft and the wash-40 er 18d against which the collar 17 presses.

Referring now especially to Figs. 2 and 3 and to the arm 13 of the casing II therein illustrated, it will be noted that terminal screws 20 received in tapped openings formed in a portion of the 45 casing arm are provided for connection with wires 22 of the cable 23 essentially as shown in Fig. 3. A set of inwardly extending essentially parallel electrically conductive lugs 21, held by and electrically associated with the terminal screws 20 hereinabove described, are disposed within the casing in a manner such that during rotation of the block 18 hereinabove described the wiper arms 19a pass over end portions 21a of the lugs and form electrical contact therewith. A connecting cover 24, formed of electrically insulative material and suited to overlie the opening 13a formed in the casing arm 13 and to conceal the terminals 20 therein positioned, is held in place preferably by screws or the like received in openings 24a formed in the casing arm.

In the casing arm 14 provided with an opening 14a in the end thereof, corresponding to the opening 13a in the arm 13 hereinabove described, are mounted the terminal screws 25 received in threaded openings formed in the body of the casing essentially as shown in Fig. 3. The terminal screws hold and have electrically associated therewith a pair of inwardly extending essentially parallel electrically conductive lugs 26 having end portions 26a thereof positioned in a manner such as during rotation of the block 18 the wiper arms 19a of the switch elements 19 establish electrical contact with the end portions of the lugs 26 simultaneously with the wiping of the end portions 21a of the arms 21 hereinabove described, whereby an electrical circuit including the first set of lugs and the second set of lugs is completed through the switch elements. Essentially parallel standard prong connectors 21 are held by the terminal screws 25 and extend outwardly from 5 the casing 11 in a manner such that the prongs may be inserted in a standard electrical outlet.

It will be evident from the foregoing description that in the use of the device the prongs 27 are inserted in a conventional electrical outlet and 10 the key (5a inserted in the lock (5 will, when rotated, serve to establish electrical circuit between the plug prongs 27 and the cable 23 conveying power to the device when being used. Of course unauthorized use of the device connected to the 15 power source through the cable 23 can be precluded by removal of the key (5a from the lock 15.

In some instances it may be desirable to interpose the device in a cable instead of using the advice in combination with a plug as hereinabore described. In this instance the prongs 27 are removed from engagement with the terminal screws 25 and a cable is connected with the terminal screws substantially in the manner described in a connection with the terminals screws 20. A suitable casing cover similar to or identical with the cover 24 hereinabove described can be attached to the open end of the casing arm 14 by appropriate fastening means received in and engaged with the openings 28 formed in the casing arm end.

Having thus described the present invention, what is desired to secure by Letters Patent is:

1. An electrical connector unit comprising a # casing formed of electrically insulative material presenting three hollow radiating arms arranged in a T-shaped configuration; an axially rotating key-controlled locked mounted within the centrally located first arm of said casing; a pair of 🚪 diametrically positioned electrical terminals mounted in end parts of a second arm of said casing; a first set of inwardly extending essentially parallel electrically conductive lugs mounted on and electrically connected to said terminals; corresponding and similar second terminals and a second set of lugs within the third arm of said casing: and means for electrically connecting said first with said second set of lugs, comprising a shaft associated with and rotatable by said lock; a collar, essentially fixedly mounted on said shaft, having a projecting formation engaging with parts of the casing for limiting rotation of said shaft; a block of electrically insulative material substantially fixedly mounted upon said shaft; and interconnected radially extending wiper elements, formed of electrically conductive material, mounted in parts of said block, adapted to sweep and make electrical contact with and between the said sets of lugs.

2. An electrical connector unit comprising a casing formed of electrically insulative material presenting three hollow radiating arms arranged in a T-shaped configuration; an axially rotating key-controlled lock mounted within the centrally located first arm of said casing; a pair of diametrically positioned electrical terminals mounted in end parts of a second arm of said casing; a first set of inwardly extending essenparallel electrically conductive lug ? tially mounted on and electrically connected to said terminals; essentially parallel standard prong connectors mounted on said second terminals and extending outwardly from said casing; corresponding and similar second terminals and 2,217,585 second set of lugs within the third arm of said casing; and means for electrically connecting said first with said second set of lugs.

3. An electrical connector unit comprising a 5 casing formed of electrically insulative material presenting three hollow radiating arms arranged in a T-shaped configuration; an axially rotating key-controlled lock mounted within the centrally located first arm of said casing; a pair of dia-10 metrically positioned electrical terminals mounted in end parts of a second arm of said casing; a first set of inwardly extending essentially parallel electrically conductive lugs mounted on and electrically connected to said 15 terminals; a casing cover formed of electrically insulative material, suited to overlie the open end of said second casing arm and conceal the terminals therein positioned; corresponding and similar second terminals and a second set of 90 lugs within the third arm of said casing; and means for electrically connecting said first with said second set of lugs, comprising a shaft assoclated with and rotatable by said lock; a collar,

Mom told a story about how her father went out and pounded a large stake in the middle of the lawn. Then he tied a self-propelled lawn mower to the stake and sat back and watched the mower circle closer and closer around the stake until the whole lawn was mowed. (P.R.Y.)

I remember riding in the car with Grandpa and stopping at a stop sign that had two signs on one pole. He would pretend that we had to get the jack out and raise the car to obey the upper sign. (C.J.A.)

I remember being told that Grandpa used to race motorcycles in cross-country or hill-climb motorcycle races. This would have been around WWI, I think. (C.J.A.)

Bielby Albert YATES Jr.

Bielby Yates Jr. was born in the Township of Westmoreland, Oneida County, New York on May 3, 1875, the son of Bielby and Alida Goodliff Yates. His father had died before he was born on September 1, 1874.

According to the 1880 Federal census, Bielby A. Yates and his mother Alida Yates were living in Utica with his grandparents, Joseph B. and Ellen Goodliff. On August 20, 1894, he married Effie McDonald in Utica. She was the daughter of Hugh and Cynthia Beckwith McDonald. They lived in Westmoreland for four years after their marriage and then moved to Utica and New Hartford and finally to Whitesboro.

Bielby Yates was a moulder and worked in Utica shops for more than fifty years. He died in Utica in 1949. His wife, Effie Yates died in New Hartford in 1969. Both are buried in the Westmoreland Village Cemetery.

He married Elizabeth Ann Bielby, the daughter of Thomas A. and Christy Ann Prudens Bielby. She died shortly after the marriage in 1872 at the age of 19. He then married Alida Goodliff, the daughter of Joseph and Ellen Van Schaick Goodliff of Utica soon after the death of his first wife.

Bielby Yates Sr. died September 1, 1874 of typhoid fever shortly after his second marriage. His son, Bielby Albert Yates was born after his death on May 3, 1875.

Isaac YATES

Isaac Yates was born March 2, 1827 in the parish of Old Malton in Yorkshire, England. He was probably the son of Anthony and Sarah Walker Yates of the same parish.

He and his wife Rachel Bielby arrived in Oneida County, New York about 1852 with two children, Bielby and Christiana. They settled in or near the village of Oriskany in Whitestown Township just outside of Utica. Other members of the Bielby family were already in Oneida County, and Rachel was probably related to Thomas A. Bielby who had arrived in Oriskany in 1827. This Thomas A. Bielby was a civil engineer who held several local offices and was a lieutenant-colonel in the military. His maternal grandfather was said to be the archbishop of Canterbury and his father was a major in the British army with Wellington in the battle of Waterloo.

Isaac Yates and his family are listed in the 1860 Federal census for Whitestown. By the 1870 census, they had moved to the nearby Township of Westmoreland. He was a farmer and a property owner according to the census records and could not read or write. Three more children were born in Oriskany, Thomas, William and Thomas A. Two of their children, Christiana and Thomas both died of diptheria in 1862.

Isaac Yates died in 1921 at the age of 96 in Westmoreland. His wife Rachel died in 1899. Both are buried in the Oriskany Village Cemetery.

Two Yards of Roses

After my grandparents, Laurence A. Yates and Faith B. Johnson were married in 1916, a rivalry ensued between the two mothers-in-law, Effie McDonald Yates and Florence Bailey Johnson. One result of this rivalry are the two "Yard of Roses" oil paintings in my possession.

Even though the two paintings are not signed, it is easy to tell which was done by which mother-in-law. Florence B. Johnson was an accomplished artist and used better quality materials. The unfinished painting was done on higher quality canvas which has survived better. The wood frame is well sanded and joined professionally with mitered corners. The canvas is neatly fastened to the frame with many small tacks, unlike the finished painting, which is more crudely fastened to a roughly made wood frame with fewer oversize tacks.

The difference in quality of the materials as well as the skill of the artist make it obvious that the unfinished painting is the work of Florence Bailey Johnson and the finished is the work of Effie McDonald.

The jury, after a short absence, returned into court with a verdict of $50 for plaintiff, and each party pay half the costs. The judge refused to receive such an improper verdict, and sent the jury out again. After another absence they returned with a verdict of $45 for plaintiff. This gives defendant costs. The plaintiff's attorney moved to set aside the verdict on the judge's minutes, and that motion will be argued sometime during the present term. The plaintiff and defendant are brothers-in-law.

Friendship Class will meet this week at the home of Mrs. Harriet Gillespie, who has just returned from the Annual Troy Conference.

Mr. and Mrs. Laurence A. Yates.

Sr., of Orchard Park, were weekend guests at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Martin H. Emmons.

Mr. and Mrs. Alexander Rossie spent Monday in Albany.

Mrs. Alice Morency, who has been visiting her daughters in Rome and Canastota, returned home Sunday and the family had sort of a get together to celebrate her birthday which was yesterday.

It would be nice if it would only clear off for the wedding this evening.

Yesterday, our first real Spring the day, inspired a picnic and quite a few of the young people enjoyed supper out of doors. Mrs. Nita the Rork accompanied them.

L.A. Yates, retired builder, dead at 76. Funeral services were held Wednesday afternoon for Laurence A. Yates, long-time Orchard Park resident and a member of the vanishing breed of craftsmen whose wood-working skills were a work of art.

Mr. Yates died of cancer Sunday in his home at 7 Greenmeadow Drive. He was 76.

Even in his retirement about 11 years ago, Mr. Yates continued to busy himself in his shop at home, fashioning pieces of wood into unique and beautiful creations. One of them, a religious "picture" of inlaid wood, vividly illustrates in minute detail his skill and patience.

As a carpenter, one of the best in his trade, and cabinet maker, Mr. Yates left his mark on many projects around the state. Some of his most notable work is in the Adirondack region where he spent his early years.

He was general contractor for the Veterans Administration Hospital at Tupper Lake in the early 1920's. Some 40 years later he was to have an influential hand in the design and construction of the Blue Mountain Museum and the Big Tupper Ski Lodge.

During World War I he put his skills to work building airplanes for Curtiss-Wright. Many years later, after coming to Orchard Park in 1934, Mr. Yates was chief carpenter on the construction of the sprawling former Curtiss-Wright plant adjacent to Buffalo Airport.

His final project before his death were cabinets he built at home for the Buffalo Museum of Science.

Each of his eight children has a piece of furniture that Mr. Yates built. Although wood-working was both a trade and hobby, he still managed time to hunt and fish because of his fondness for the outdoors.

He is survived by his wife, Faith B. Yates; four sons, Donald, Warren, Laurence, Jr. and Kenneth Yates; four daughters, Mrs. Raymond Sutter, Mrs. Alvin Mecklenburg, Mrs. Dick Meisburger, and Mrs. Robert Andrle; a brother Hugh; a sister, Mrs. Gladys Wiegand, and 32 grandchildren and 34 great grandchildren.

He was one of its founders, and has always taken an active interest in its growth and prosperity.

Bielby, Isaac P., son of Thomas A., was born March 11, 1847, in Oriskany, Oneida county, in the old house just west of the Presbyterian church, now used as a grocery store. Thomas A. was born near Malton, England, in June, 1800; he came to America and located in the western part of Oneida county in 1827, and in 1828 settled in Oriskany where he had charge of conveying woolen goods to New York city for Newton S. Dexter & Co., proprietors of the first woolen factory establishment in the United States for manufacturing supplies for the Federal army in the war of 1812. In 1852 Mr. Bielby settled on a farm two and a half miles southwest of Oriskany, in the town of Whitestown, which Isaac P. now owns. There he died in December, 1873. In politics originally a Whig, and an early Abotitionist, and later a Republican; he was a college bred man, and civil engineer; he held several local offices, and in the military rose through the various grades in the service to lieutenant-colonel, to which he was appointed by his friend and coworker, Governor William H. Seward. His maternal grandfather was archbishop of Canterbury, and his father a major in the British army who distinguished himself with Wellington in the battle of Waterloo. Mr. Bielby married Christy Ann, daughter of Isaac and Elizabeth Prudens, pioneers of Oriskany. She survives him. Their children were Thomas Picton and John Allison, both deceased; Isaac Prudens of Utica; William James, who occupies the homestead; and Elizabeth Ann, who married Bielby Yates and died in 1872. Isaac Prudens, father of Mrs. Bielby, was a deacon and local Methodist preacher, widely known as an earnest Christian, and died in 1870, aged nearly eighty years. His wife died about 1871. Isaac Prudens Bielby attended the district schools of his native town, Misses Cunningham and Grahame's, Whitestown Seminary, and Oberlin College in Ohio. He read law with Johnson & Prescott of Rome, was admitted to the bar at Buffalo in June, 1875, and began practice in the office of his preceptors. Becoming deeply interested in religion he entered Auburn Theological Seminary to master the Hebrew and Chaldean languages. While there his home was destroyed by fire, and all his property lost in the ruins. He returned to the homestead to settle the estate and lift the encumbrances, and also practice law at Oriskany. January 1, 1876, he entered the sheriff's office as counsel under George Benedict, and has remained there ever since, and has been attorney for the sheriffs in all the courts and before the governors. Mr. Bielby became an active abolitionist from his boyhood and in the Lincoln campaign joined the Republican Wideawakes, now the Utica Continentals, of which he is still a member. In 1861 he was a drummer in the recruiting service and a member of the Whitestown Seminary cadets. He enlisted in Co. E, second N. Y. Volunteers, but was too young to muster. He afterwards served in the 145th Regiment. In September, 1864, he was mustered into Co. C, 14th N. Y. H. A. and served till his discharge in September, 1865. In the great temperance reform movement of 1877 he was one of the most able and eloquent advocates, being the friend and companion of the lamented John P. French. In the political campaign of 1880 he raised the Lawrence cadets (afterwares recognized as the Conkling Unconditionals) and of which he was captain. He was a lieutenant-colonel on General Grant's staff of the Boys in Blue, a national veteran organization, which local organization became the Forty Rounders in the Blaine and Logan campaign of 1884. He was also commander of the Plumed Knights and adjutant-general of the Thirteenth Division (Central New York) of the Boys in Blue, and is now president of the Forty Rounders and the Veterans' Organization of Oneida County. He has been very active in politics and has often been nominated for office. but has declined to run. He was made a Mason in Roman Lodge, and since April, 1876, has been a member of Oriental Lodge, Utica. He is a member of the Veteran Masonic Association, a charter member of the Masonic Club, and for many years active in the I. O. G. T., holding offices in the Grand and Supreme Grand Lodges. He was also for many years an officer in the Y. M. C. A. He joined the G. A. R. in Illinois in 1866 and in 1867 became a member of Post Worth, Westmoreland; later he joined Post Ross, New York Mills, and about 1872 became the first chaplain of Post Skiller of Rome of which he was the organizer and charter member. He is now a past commander of Bacon Post, Utica, was president of the old Utica Veteran Zouaves, and formerly chaplain with the rank of captain of the 26th Battalion N. G. January 27, 1886, he married Anna E., daughter of Langford T. and Elizabeth Hewett. Mr. Hewett is an old engineer on the D. L. & W. Railroad and a descendant of one of the pioneer families of Paris, Oneida county. He is one of the historians of Oneida county, and author of a book of patriotic songs, Illustrated History of Utica, Sheriffs of Oneida County, District Attorneys and Surrogates of Oneida County, and other works of the different organizations to which he belongs. He is a member and officer of the Presbyterian church. He has the reputation of being an eloquent advocate, a competent official and faithful public servant.

Comstock, Ira Morris, was born at Salisbury, N. Y., January 1, 1856, son of Morris W. and Sarah (Rice) Comstock, and grandson of Ira Comstock, moving to Whitestown from Salisbury in April, 1866. With a preparatory education at Whitestown Seminary and Utica Busines College, he began to read medicine in 1876 at Whitestown under Mm. M. James, M. D., of that place; attended three courses of lectures at the University of the City of New York, and was graduated February 18, 1879; also took post-graduate instruction at the same institution in 1880. On May 1, 1880, Dr. Comstock commenced the practice of medicine at New York Mills, and has made no change in location since. He is a member of the Oneida County Medical Society. He is visiting physician to Faxton Hospital; assistant surgeon Patriarchs Militant; member of the I. O. O. F.; Oriental Lodge, No. 224, F. & A. M., Utica, N. Y.; of the League of American Wheelmen; and of the Order of United Friends and A. O, U. W.; also medical examiner for several life insurance companies. April 7, 1880, he married Emma L. Bartlett, of Williamstown, by whom he had four children: Morris W., May Asenath, Aletha Emma, and Charles Ward.

Hale, Andrew Jerome, was born in the town of Sangerfield, N. Y., April 14, 1825, and died in Waterville, N.Y., May 8, 1896. His grandparents, Minerva Hale and wife, were of the earliest settlers of the town, having come to it in 1793 from Connecticut, and the large farm which they cleared and cultivated was in the possession of their grandson at the time of his death. Their oldest son. Seneca, was the first male child born in Sangerfield; thus three generations of the family have been intimately connected with the history of the town and have been among its foremost citizens. In early life Mr. Hale engaged in the culture of hops and the wool industry, afterwards substituting dairying for the wool business. In 1873 he moved into the village of Waterville, N. Y., letting his farm on shares. At one time he was engaged with Charles Bacon and W. P. Locke, all of Waterville, in buying hops for brewers. Mr. Hale was a member of the Presbyterian church, and for many years both an elder and trustee. In the Waterville Grange, Patrons of Husbandry, he was an active member and held the post of worthy master for eight years. In politics he was first a Whig and afterwards a staunch Republican, and had served his town as assessor and highway commissioner, and also had been trustee of the village for some time. He was public spirited and always encouraged with substantial help all enterprises. When the Utica, Chenango and Susquehanna Valley Railroad was built he took a large block of stock. He generally attended county conventions of his party and in 1892 he attended the Congressional Convention. Mr.

1857, son of John Dempsey, who was born in Ireland, and came to the United States in 1848, settling in Utica, where he followed his trade as mason; later he engaged in farming on College Hill. He now lives retired in Clinton village. He married Catherine Lyons, of Ireland, by whom he had eight children. Thomas E. Dempsey was educated in the old Liberal Institute at Clinton. He taught in the village schools for about three years, and in 1881 he engaged in the buying of hops, which business he still follows. He was one of the first members of the school board which organized the Union School and Academy and erected one of the finest school buildings in the State. He was one of the organizers of the Clinton Burial Case Company, and was its secretary and treasurer for about three years, but resigned upon the transfer to Utica.

Sanders, E. E., was born in Columbia, N. Y., March 25, 1862, son of William and Frances Sanders. He learned the trade of cheese maker when quite young, which he followed for twelve years, and then engaged in farming for five years. In 1891 he purchased the Hibbard House in Bridgewater, which he has since conducted successfully, and is a very popular host. In 1886 he married Bertha M. Eckler, by whom he had one daughter, Hazel. Mr. Sanders is an active and influential Republican, and at present is street commissioner of the village of Bridgewater, and has been delegate to several Republican conventions.

Horton, George C., son of James, was born in Sandisfield, Berkshire county, Mass., July 10, 1843, and moved with his parents to Herkimer, N. Y., in the spring of 1849. There James Horton was for three years the buyer and salesman for the Laffin Brothers Paper Company, manufacturers of writing papers. Leaving them he engaged in the powder business in Frankfort and continued until his death in 1870. George C. Horton was educated in the public schools of Herkimer and Frankfort, Whitestown Seminary, and at Hamilton College, teaching school in the mean while during part of each year for eight successive years. His school teaching commenced in the fall of 1860. In the spring of 1869 he settled in Utica and became a member of the firm of Rowley Brothers & Co., which in January, 1879, was changed to Rowley & Horton. This is the oldest paper firm in Utica. Mr. Horton is a member and trustee of the Tabernacle Baptist church, and has been very prominent in the Young Men's Christian Association, serving as one of the trustees since its organization, as treasurer of the board since February, 1895, as its first secretary, and two years as its president. He was one of its founders, and has always taken an active interest in its growth and prosperity.

Dear Chris:

Thanks for your note. I'm afraid you were more help to me that I may be to you, though. I had some information for your ancestors but I didn't know the exact birth dates. The only new piece of information I have for you at this point is that my notes from a search of the NYS Index of Vital Records in Albany suggest that Isaac YATES died in Utica, 16 May 1921, one day different than the date you gave. It is of course possible that I miscopied! Do you have a copy of the death certificate?

So, if I understand correctly, you are descended from Bielby YATES and his second wife, Alida GOODLIFF. Is that right? Elizabeth Ann BIELBY, his first wife, is a sister to my 2nd great-grandfather, William James BIELBY. My guess is that we have searched many of the same sources but I have some info on Elizabeth and William's parents, Thomas A. and Christiana and their children and some sketchy information on Thomas A.'s father, Thomas. If you by chance don't have that information, let me know and I will send it. Have you tried probate records in Oneida County? I don't know if I've specifically looked for YATES.

I grew up in Westmoreland and have long thought that our "Oriskany" Bielbys were in some way related to the "Westmoreland" Bielbys, especially since they both seem to come from the Malton area. Just speaking off the top of my head, could Rachel be a child of one of Thomas BIELBY's children (Thomas A., William, Robert P., or John?)??? The dates would be about right, wouldn't they? Have you searched parish records in England trying to find relationships? Have you tried the IGI recently? I think the records were extracted by the LDS Church, if I remember correctly.

I am told that there is a Bielby Family Bible (probably in the possession of Erwin Bielby of Blossvale, NY)

This record might confirm the marriage of Elizabeth Ann to Bielby Yates. We have a family reunion coming up on Sunday...maybe I can ask. I am looking forward to the day when I have a scanner and can collect these records!

The question I'd like to answer is this: Did Thomas Bielby, husband of Ann Allison and father of Thomas A. Bielby come to the United States? I have been doing genealogical research on and off for probably 15 years and I believe in one of my early outings to the Oriskany Cemetery (when I didn't take particularly good notes or photographs) I found a stone, flat in the earth, mentioning Thomas Bielby of New Malton, England. I have returned a number of times trying to find it and it is either a) covered over with grass (I have even tried poking in the area where I thought it might be) or b) something I imagined! I have made a a couple of attempts to find early cemetery transcriptions that might have caught that particular stone but no luck yet.

Well, happy hunting to you! Let's keep in touch.

Subject: Bielby Genealogy

Dear Chris:

Thanks for your note. I'm afraid you were more help to me that I may be to you, though. I had some information for your ancestors but I didn't know the exact birth dates. The only new piece of information I have for you at this point is that my notes from a search of the NYS Index of Vital Records in Albany suggest that Isaac YATES died in Utica, 16 May 1921, one day different than the date you gave. It is of course possible that I miscopied! Do you have a copy of the death certificate?

So, if I understand correctly, you are descended from Bielby YATES and his second wife, Alida GOODLIFF. Is that right? Elizabeth Ann BIELBY, his first wife, is a sister to my 2nd great-grandfather, William James BIELBY.

My guess is that we have searched many of the same sources but I have some info on Elizabeth and William's parents, Thomas A. and Christiana and their children and some sketchy information on Thomas A.'s father, Thomas. If you by chance don't have that information, let me know and I will send it. Have you tried probate records in Oneida County? I don't know if I've specifically looked for YATES.

I grew up in Westmoreland and have long thought that our "Oriskany" Bielbys were in some way related to the "Westmoreland" Bielbys, especially since they both seem to come from the Malton area. Just speaking off the top of my head, could Rachel be a child of one of Thomas BIELBY's children (Thomas A.,

William, Robert P., or John?)??? The dates would be about right, wouldn't they? Have you searched parish records in England trying to find relationships? Have you tried the IGI recently? I think the records were extracted by the LDS Church, if I remember correctly.

Erwin Bielby of Blossvale, NY)

This record might confirm the marriage of Elizabeth Ann to Bielby Yates. We have a family reunion coming up on Sunday...maybe I can ask. I am looking forward to the day when I have a scanner and can collect these records!

The question I'd like to answer is this: Did Thomas Bielby, husband of Ann Allison and father of Thomas A. Bielby come to the United States? I have been doing genealogical research on and off for probably 15 years and I believe in one of my early outings to the Oriskany Cemetery (when I didn't take particularly good notes or photographs) I found a stone, flat in the earth, mentioning Thomas Bielby of New Malton, England. I have returned a number of times trying to find it and it is either a) covered over with grass

(I have even tried poking in the area where I thought it might be) or b) something I imagined! I have made a a couple of attempts to find early cemetery transcriptions that might have caught that particular stone but no luck yet.

Well, happy hunting to you! Let's keep in touch.

--Cynthia Richardson

Dear Chris Andrle:

I am showing in my records a Robert Bielby married to Esther, had a son Thomas Bielby born 12 March 1780 in Wheldrake, Yorkshire, Eng. He married Mary Walker 17 Dec 1810. She was born 3 July 1797 at Wheldrake and died 19 Nov 1860. If you have a connection with this line, I would be grateful for any information you can give me. Thank you, Bonnie Weber, 1072 6th Line, Oakville, Ontario, L6H 1W5

Subject: Re: Bielby family

Thank you for your reply. We are working on the same family! James Allison Bielby was the son of William James Bielby, who was the son of Thomas A. Bielby who was the son of Thomas and Ann Allison Bielby. I only have bits and pieces of information on them.) I have not been to Oneida to work on this family yet. It is my husband's family, and have just begun work on them. The dates I have for Thomas A. Bielby are slightly different from yours. I have a birth date of June 1805 and death date of 29 Dec 1873--dates provided by my husband's niece, so I don't know where she got them. I have no dates for Thomas Bielby or Ann Allison, or birthplace, or anything. For Christina Prudens, Thomas A. Bielby's wife, I have the following: born 13 Jan 1823 in Oriskany, Oneida, NY; died 21 Jan 1902 in Oriskany, Oneida, NY. Their son William James was born 26 June 1849 in Oriskany, married Sarah Phillips 7 Sept 1872, and died 21 Jan 1902 in Oriskany, Oneida, NY. Their son William James was born 26 June 1849 in Oriskany, married Sarah Phillips 7 Sept 1872, and died 4 Jan 1931 in Oriskany. If you have more information on the family back to England, I ould love to find out more. Perhaps I can give you information on the younger generations, if you are interested. However, if your line branches off at Thomas A. Bielby, perhaps you aren't interested n his descendants. Let me know. Again thanks for your reply.

Dear Mrs. Halamka,

On a recent trip to the Oneida County Historical Society, I found correspondence from you relating to the BIELBY family in their files.

I am also interested in this family in Oneida County, and have been looking for information on Rachel BIELBY, wife of Isaac YATES of Westmoreland, Oneida County, New York.

She was born 16 Oct 1825 in Yorkshire, England, according to her death certificate, probably in the parish of Bridlington, the daughter of Thomas and Mary (Walker) Bielby, according to the LDS Library International Genealogical Index. She died 26 Nov 1899 in Westmoreland, and is buried in the Oriskany Village Cemetery.

I think that all the Bielbys in Oneida County came from Yorkshire and are all related - Samuel, Robert, Thomas and William may all have been brothers of Rachel, though I haven't confirmed it.

Do you have any additional information on this family? I have miscellaneous census and cemetery information in my notes which I could copy if you are interested.

Sincerely,

Christopher Andrle

Dear Sir:

I am writing to ask if your records would have any information on:

William Bielby (Bilby) b.c. 1820-25 & wife Sarah b.?

their daughter Mary Jane b.c. 12/25/1843,44

who married 1860 Wesley Polk

I am searching for a marriage record for William and Sarah (maiden name?) and a birth and marriage record for Mary Jane.

My family information states that Mary Jane was born in Oriskany near Utica,

The 1855 N.Y. State Census lists a William Bilby age 30 in Paris, N.Y.

I would appreciate hearing from you. Thank you.

FARMER JOHN BROWN DEAD Passed away this morning after long illness Well known breeder of fast Horses Trained for the Track at His Farm Three and On-Half Miles North of Rome Born in England

John Brown, one of the best known farmers of Rome, died this morning at his home on Turin road, 3 1/2 miles outside the city. He had been in failing health for the past two or three years and for a year past had been out but little.

Mr. Brown was born near Scarborough, England 70 years ago and lived near the scene of his nativity until twenty-five years of age, when he immigrated to this country and located in Westmoreland with his wife and family of three children. His wife died some years later, and while living in Rome Mr. Brown was united in marriage with Miss Rebecca Bielby, who survives.

>From Westmoreland Mr. Brown removed to Spiencer Settlement and took charge of the Bruh farm. Subsequently he operated the Huntington farm. the site of the present county home, and remained there eight years. He then purchased and removed to the farm on the Turin road where he died. Mr. Brown was always a farmer by occupation, but in addition to that he was, for many years, a successful breeder of fine horses. To track horses he devoted particular attention. Though he had raised no horses in later years, the well worn half mile speedway where he was want to develop racing qualifies in his colts and familiarize them with work on the track, still remains to the view of those who drive by his late home. He sold many of his horses at fancy prices even in those days. In politics Mr. Brown was a Republican. As a churchman he was a faithful and conscientious member of the First M.E. Chuch of Rome. He was of a iovial disposition, always kind hearted and he had hosts of friends. There are left the following sons and daughters: Rev. Smith W. Brown, pastor of the South Street M.E. Church of Utica; George H. Bell, Mrs. George H. Plato, Mrs. William Smith, Miss Sarah Brown, Mrs. George J. Cook, and Mrs. T.W. Smith of Rome and Mrs. W. A. Bielby of Wessternville.

17 Sep 1908 Rome Daily Sentinel

Mrs. Rebecca Brown, wife of John Brown, died at 7:30 pm on Wednesday at the home of her brother, Thomas R. Bielby, on Turin Road, with whom she had made her home for the past five years. She suffered a stroke of paralysis about two years ago and since then had been an invalid. Her maiden name was Bielby and she was born in Yorkshire, England on 4 October, 1837, coming to this country with her parents when she was four years old. They settled in Westmoreland, where the family lived for a number of years. For the past 50 years she had lived in Rome. She was well known as a kind and charitable woman. She was an earnest member of the First M.E. Church and of the Woman's Home Missionary Society connected with the Church. In 1884 she married Mr. Brown, who died five years ago last March. Surviving are four brothers, John E., and Thomas R. Bielby of Rome, Samuel of Bartlett, and Albert of Westernville.

Hope some of this is interesting.

Stan,

For the life of me, I can't recall whether or not I replied to your email of 28 October. If this is a repeat, just ignore it. If not, I am sorry for the long delay.

I believe that the Isaac Bielby you are talking about was Isaac Prudens, son of Thomas A. and Christina Prudens BIELBY. He and wife Anna HEWITT had no heirs. Last spring, I discovered an interesting story about Isaac Prudens Bielby during the Civil War. At the Oneida Co. Historical Soc.'s museum, I saw a small New Testament which he carried with him during the war. Accompanying it was a printed note explaning his adventures. I don't know if you are interested, but I am enclosing the contents of the letter with this email.

I know little more about Isaac Prudens Bielby. His wife Anna died in 1911 and he died in 1912. Apparently, before his death, he donated items to the Oneida Co.

Historical Society, of which he was a strong supporter. So far, I have only come across the Bible, but there may be more items.

I hope this letter is of some help. Do you have any information on Thomas BIELBY and wife Ann ALLISON, parents of Thomas A. BIELBY and grandparents of Isaac Prudens

BIELBY? My information, word of mouth, is that they were from New Malton, Yorks., Eng. I see that your line is from Yorkshire also. I have no idea when our BIELBYs came to America or to NY state. Have you done any research that would link your line with ours? I would be glad to have any information you have to share.

BIELBY BIBLE

This small bible contains no family information, but inside was this letter that seems important enough to save:

"Utica November 30, 1911

Oneida Historical Society

Kind Friends,

Herewith I hand you an old and valued testament, it was given to me as a prize when a boy about ten years of age and a scholar in the Oriskany Sunday School, by one

Timothy Jarvis the pastor of the Presbyterian Church of that place.

When I went into the army as a volunteer soldier of the Civil War of 61-65, 1 carried it with me and it was my constant companion. At the battle of the South Side R.R. or the First Hatcher Run, I lost it while preparing my gun for work on the skirmish line, or what is now termed the firing line. I deeply felt the loss, until the chaplain gave me another one, and even then grieved over it.

About ten days after I lost it a cavelryman named Brotherton road up to my tent and asked me if I had lost any thing, I told him I had lost my testament. When I lost the testament it had a silver clasp on it, and also enclosed, a letter from my father. The caveleryman smiled as he took it out of his pocket and handed it to me, saying ${\tt I}$ was riding along to meet the desperate charge of Wade Hampton, and I saw something glittering in the sun, I dismounted quickly and picked up the testament, it was the $\frac{1}{2}$ clasp that shined so brightly. I came over to see my brother and brought it along with me and here it is for you. With much joy and gladness I thanked \lim , and it was a case of, it is more blessed to give then to receive, for he was delighted to think he had dismounted to pick it up on the battlefield.

I retained it until the seige of Petersburg, when I was again wounded and lost it, and for months wondered where it might be. I was transferred to Old Hawlell Barrecks

Va. with other wounded soldiers, when I got so that I could be transferred to Slough Barracks I was assisted into the storage room to select a knapsack, I picked one up that appeared to be empty. I then shook it, and there seemed to be something in it. I put my hand in it and to my surprise drew out the testament.

The clasp was broken, and the book was battered and much damaged, but the motto which now appears on the cover was decernable as was my name. I prized it highly and have kept it ever since, as a family relic. I got it bound as it now appears to preserve it, and had the motto placed on the cover. to my wife, it was a treasure, but she is now at rest, and I know of no better place for it than in your Society, so place it in your keeping.

Yours Respecting

Chris

I have been corresponding for a few months with Steve Bielby of York England. We haven't been able to establish a connection with my tree but he has bought copies of my Bielby history books and found them interesting. He is starting to plan a world Bielby reunion and wants to hear from any Bielby who might be interested in attending. Please share this with your Bielby family group.

WORLD BIELBY REUNION

Steve Bielby of York, England, is looking at organising a Bielby family get together in August 2002 for all those interested in Bielby family history. He is thinking of holding it in York with a day in the village of Bielby and surrounding areas with Bielby family connections. Please pass the word around and ask anyone who might be interested in attending to contact Steve at <steve@bielby.demon.co.uk> so he can gauge the level of interest.

Immigration: 1827, Western Oneida County

Children of THOMAS BIELBY and CHRISTY PRUDENS are:

 ISAAC PRUDENS³ BIELBY, b. March 11, 1847, Oriskany, Oneida, NY; m. ANNA E. HEWETT, January 27, 1886, New York; b. Oneida County, NY.

Notes for ISAAC PRUDENS BIELBY:

From Wager's History of Oneida County, published in 1896

"Isaac Prudens Bielby attended the district schools of his native town, Misses Cunningham and Grahme's, Whitestown Seminary, and Oberlin College in Ohio. He read law with Johnson & Prescott of Rome, was admitted to the bar at Buffalo in June, 1875, and began practice in the office of his preceptors. Becoming deeply interested in religion he entered Auburn Theological Seminary to master the Hebrew and Chaldean languages. While there his home was destroyed by fire, and all his property lost in the ruins. He returned to the homestead to settle the estate and lift the encumbrances, and also practice law at Oriskany. January 1, 1976, he entered the sheriff's office as counsel under George Benedict, and has remained there ever since, and has been attorney for the sheriffs in all the courts before the governors. Mr. Bielby became an avid abolitionist from his boyhood and in the Lincoln campaign joined the Republican Wideawakes, now the Utica Continentals, of which he is still a member. In 1861 he was a drummer in the recruiting service and a member of the Whitestown Seminary cadets. He enlisted in Co. E, second N. Y. Volunteers, but was too young to muster. He afterwards served in the 145th Regiment. In September, 1864, he was mustered into Co. C., 14th N. Y. H. A. and served till his discharge in September, 1865. [NOTE: CW database shows enlist date of September 26, 1864, Utica NY, rank of Private, age 19, with the same regiment as is noted in Wager's book. Note that if his birthdate really is March 11, 1847, then he was actually only 17 when he enlisted. Birth date is from LDS IGI record, so it probably is correct.

"In the great temperance reform movement of 1877 he was one of the most able and eloquent advocates, being the friend and companion of the lamented John P. French. In the political campaign of 1880 he raised the Lawrence cadets (afterwares recognized as the Conkling Unconditionals) and of which he was captain. He was a lieutenant-colonel on General Grant's staff of the Boys in Blue, a national veteran organization, which local organization became the Forty Rounders in the Blaine and Logan campaign of 1884. He was also commander of the Plumed Knights and adjutant-general of the Thirteenth Division (Central New York) of the Boys in Blue, and is now president of the Forty Rounders and the Veterans' Organization of Oneida County. He has been ver active in politics and has often been nominated for office, but has declined to run. He was made a Mason in Roman Lodge, and since April, 1876, has been a member of Oriental Lodge, Utica. He is a member of the Veteran Masonic Association, a charter member of the Masonic Club, and for many years active in the I. O. G. T., holding offices in the Grand and Supreme Grand Lodges. He was also for many years an officer in the Y. M. C. A. He joined the G. A. R. in Illinois in 1866 and in 1867 became a member of Post Worth, Westmoreland; later he joined Post Ross, New York Mills, and about 1872 became toe first chaplain of Post Skiller of Rome of which he was the organizer and charter member. He is now a past commander of Bacon Post, Utica, was president of the old Utica Veteran Zouaves, and formerly chaplain with the rank of captain of the 26th Battalion N. G."

Notes for ROBERT P. BIELBY:

Robert immigrated to Philadelphia in 1832, hoping to become a farm owner. He moved to Oriskiny, New York, working in the woolen mills until he could purchase a farm around 1837. [Note that his brother Thomas also worked in the woolen trade in NY, according to the Wager book on Oneida County.]

By 1849, he decided to sell the farm and move "out west." He sold the farm in New York and bought the 114 acre farm near Hinsdale, where Bielby Lane now runs. It is now a subdivision. (The Pleasantdale Bicentennial booklet locates the church about 1/2 mile west of the Church, were the toll road is today.)

Robert said his great grandfather had been the Archibship of Canterbury (consistent with the account in the Wager book). He helped to build the Lyonsville Church in 1850. (The Pleasantdale Bicentennial booklet says that plans for the church began in 1853-54 and it was completed in 1858.)

Notes for ISAAC PRUDENS BIELBY: From Wager's History of Oneida County, published in 1896

"Isaac Prudens Bielby attended the district schools of his native town, Misses Cunningham and Grahme's, Whitestown Seminary, and Oberlin College in Ohio. He read law with Johnson & Prescott of Rome, was admitted to the bar at Buffalo in June, 1875, and began practice in the office of his preceptors. Becoming deeply interested in religion he entered Auburn Theological Seminary to master the Hebrew and Chaldean languages. While there his home was destroyed by fire, and all his property lost in the ruins. He returned to the homestead to settle the estate and lift the encumbrances, and also practice law at Oriskany. January 1, 1976, he entered the sheriff's office as counsel under George Benedict, and has remained there ever since, and has been attorney for the sheriffs in all the courts before the governors. Mr. Bielby became an avid abolitionist from his boyhood and in the Lincoln campaign joined the Republican Wideawakes, now the Utica Continentals, of which he is still a member. In 1861 he was a drummer in the recruiting service and a member of the Whitestown Seminary cadets. He enlisted in Co. E, second N. Y. Volunteers, but was too young to muster. He afterwards served in the 145th Regiment. In September, 1864, he was mustered into Co. C., 14th N. Y. H. A. and served till his discharge in September, 1865. [NOTE: CW database shows enlist date of September 26, 1864, Utica NY, rank of Private, age 19, with the same regiment as is noted in Wager's book. Note that if his birthdate really is March 11, 1847, then he was actually only 17 when he enlisted. Birth date is from LDS IGI record, so it probably is correct.]

"In the great temperance reform movement of 1877 he was one of the most able and eloquent advocates, being the friend and companion of the lamented John P. French. In the political campaign of 1880 he raised the Lawrence cadets (afterwares recognized as the Conkling Unconditionals) and of which he was captain. He was a lieutenant-colonel on General Grant's staff of the Boys in Blue, a national veteran organization, which local organization became the Forty Rounders in the Blaine and Logan campaign of 1884. He was also commander of the Plumed Knights and adjutant-general of the Thirteenth Division (Central New York) of the Boys in Blue, and is now president of the Forty Rounders and the Veterans' Organization of Oneida County. He has been ver active in politics and has often been nominated for office, but has declined to run. Notes for ROBERT P. BIELBY:

Robert immigrated to Philadelphia in 1832, hoping to become a farm owner. He moved to Oriskiny, New York, working in the woolen mills until he could purchase a farm around 1837. [Note that his brother Thomas also worked in the woolen trade in NY, according to the Wager book on Oneida County.]

By 1849, he decided to sell the farm and move "out west." He sold the farm in New York and bought the 114 acre farm near Hinsdale, where Bielby Lane now runs. It is now a subdivision. (The Pleasantdale Bicentennial booklet locates the church about 1/2 mile west of the Church, were the toll road is today.)

Robert said his great grandfather had been the Archibship of Canterbury (consistent with the account in the Wager book). He helped to build the Lyonsville Church in 1850. (The Pleasantdale Bicentennial booklet says that plans for the church began in 1853-54 and it was completed in 1858.)
